The proposed rule requiring photo ID's to be carried along with a pilot license is a poorly drafted rule and should be dropped. By your own admission, the security benefits of the rule are "unquantifiable". In fact, there is no connection between picture ID's and the desire or ability of someone to commit an illegal act. This rule is a knee-jerk over-reaction by the FAA/TSA to "do something", when we all would be better served by those agencies spending our tax dollars on safety related issues.
